Hello Jonathan!

Overall I like how the site has turned out, I think that the goal is really being met by the design. I think that it is clear what I am viewing as well as what you are trying to convey. I also really like the quotes that you chose for the homepage. Also, very cute colors.

I guess a few concerns are the legibility of the text at the bottom of the page. Also, I am not too sure if it is clickable or not, but if it is I am not too sure if it is immediately recognizable just from the design. The spacing in between the text and the end of the image is also a bit tight too. I think the line height on the quotes is also a bit tight, especially with the larger blue text.

I guess another thing is that you should feel free to use images of anything like an image of a bakery or ingredients, not just croissants. Have fun with it! You can do whatever you would like.